Former Says Almost Every Delegate for Him.

NEW YORK, April 24.—(UP)—

Frank Knox, in a telegram today to Sen. William E. Borah, a rival candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said that "almost every delegate chosen in the Illinois primary publicly made known his personal intention, if elected, to vote for me."

Replying to a charge by Borah that Knox supporters were attempting to win over delegates in downstate Illinois districts where Republicans returned a majority for Borah, the Chicago publisher said:

"I know of no efforts such as referred to in your telegram and am sure you agree with me that the delegates will follow the dictates of their own conscience."

Plans for Huge Dirigible Told

Goodyear-Zeppelin Co. Prepares to Building Airship Designed for Trans-Atlantic Mail Delivery

AKRON, April 24.—(UP)—Plans for a super-dirigible, larger than Germany's new Hindenburg, were revealed today by President Paul W. Litchfield of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Co.

Goodyear engineers have been working on the plans for some time. Should the federal government interest itself in lighter-than-air craft for commercial purposes, expressly to join with Germany in trans-Atlantic service, production could be started at the Zeppelin dock here within 24 hours.

The new dirigible would combine all the construction knowledge learned from the tragedies of the Akron and the Macon. It would be the largest ever constructed, 850 feet in length, 145 feet in diameter. Those dimensions would make it 37 feet longer than the Hindenburg and 75 feet longer than the Akron.

Litchfield said the craft would be built primarily for commercial purposes, but so constructed that within 24 hours it could be rigged for military service as a flying air base.

"I am convinced," Litchfield said confidently, "that the government again must support the movement for lighter-than-air craft if we are to keep step with other nations. There is no doubt that it is the coming mode of transportation across the seas."

Litchfield, 61, with thinning hair, almost white, professed great faith in the future of the rigid airship. That is the reason he has his engineers busy on plans for the new super-dirigible.

"Germany already has shown we are falling behind in trans-Atlantic commercial service," he said. "It will take two years for us to build one dirigible, so even should we start now we would be far behind."

LAMNECK CLAIM TAX BILL FATAL

Ohio Solon Spurs Attack on New Deal Measure

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(UP)—

Democratic dissent spurred the Republican attack on the New Deal's $803,000,000 tax bill today when Rep. Arthur P. Lamneck, D., Ohio, assailed the measure as shaking "the foundation of the country's business structure."

Supporting Republican charges that the measure is "fantastic," that it was given public support during hearings chiefly by a communist and that it is in reality "an industrial bribe control measure," Lamneck contended the bill would tend to destroy such "a business institution" as the Ford Motor Co.

Lamneck asserted hearings on the measure were a "farce," that the bill would not produce the new revenue claimed and that it would bring business receiverships to a peak.

The Democratic attack followed a series of republican speeches assailing the bill as "fantastic."

Other Men to Face New York Charges, State's Attorney Indicates

NEW YORK, April 24.—(UP)—

District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan revealed today that he expects the indictment of five men yesterday for the kidnaping of Paul H. Wendel to be but a precursor to indictment of "the men beyond them."

He refused to amplify his statement, but activity of his assistants and police indicated that the men of whom he spoke are residents of New Jersey.

Assistant District Attorney Francis A. Madden and three New York policemen pressed a search in Mt. Holly and Trenton, N. J., for Ellis H. Parker Jr., one of the five indicted. Young Parker's father is detective chief of Burlington-co and was Gov. Harold G. Hoffman's principal aide in his investigation of the conviction of Bruno Richard Hauptmann. The younger man is himself an investigator for the New Jersey bureau of motor vehicle inspection and worked on the Hauptmann case under Hoffman's orders.

The seven judges of the Ohio Supreme Court today labored to clean up the high court's docket by June 19, when the summer recess will begin.

3. The Hamilton-co civil service case, which was taken into the Supreme Court this year.

Ordered to Reduce

The telephone case entered the court when attorneys for the utility company appealed to the high tribunal on a decision of the public utilities commission calling on the company to reduce its rates in 45 cities and towns and to refund nearly $12,000,000 in collections which the commission declared excessive for the years 1935 to 1932, inclusive.

The case was opened by the

DAVEY ATTACKS BRICKER AGAIN IN STATE TALK

DEFIANCE, April 24.—(UP)—

Governor Martin L. Davey renewed his scathing criticism of Attorney General John W. Bricker, unopposed candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, at a Democratic rally last night.

Bricker, Davey said, is the candidate of "old line Republican bosses."

The governor also charged that Bricker had failed to press for collection of millions of dollars in delinquent taxes and workmen's compensation premiums certified to him.

"He appointed a great army of Republican political lawyers and allowed them to 'milk' closed banks and building and loan associations with exorbitant legal fees out of the pockets of the depositors," Davey said.

William G. Pickrel of Dayton, former lieutenant governor, and Perry Faulkner of Montpelier, former Indiana American Legion commander, were other speakers.

Duce's Men Fix May 11 as Date to Close War; Little Fighting Reported

ROME, April 24.—(UP)— newspaper Giornale d'Italia reported in an unconfirmed dispatch from Djibouti today that Abaha is prepared to surrender to the Italians without conditions.

The dispatch quoted an officer, a member of the military advisory group, just left the capital, as saying a commission composed of the mayor of Addis Ababa, the director of foreign affairs, John H. Spencer, ambassador to the Ethiopian government, had decided to accept Italian terms.

Italian troops under a general, miles from Addis Ababa, over the issue to the Italians would not be admitted.

ROME, April 24.—(UP)—A new Italian broadcast today has announced that Italian troops have taken possession of the town of Urota, 100 miles southwest of Djibouti, on the road to the capital.

Heavy rains of the last few days appear not to have slowed the Italian advance materially.

Recent excitement over the expected capture of Addis Ababa died, and Italians have set a deadline for this final phase of the war for May 11. When the League of Nations council meets again, Marshal Pietro Badoglio, in the communiqué—No. 184 of the day—said that troops on the eastern front were advancing in all sectors.

One column, moving north on the Ethiopian strong point of Baneh, occupied Gabre Hor, 10 miles south of Sasa Baneh, after taking God-Adde, 10 miles to the east of Gabre Hor, Badoglio cabled.

Defenses Battered

He said that Italian airplanes bombed Ethiopian defense lines at Sasa Baneh and Dacca Mado, west of Sasa Baneh on another caravan route. Italian newspapers reported Wednesday that Italians had "surrounded" Daga Mogro.

At the same time, dispatches from the front reported that Italians in the southeastern Ethiopian are advancing at the rate of 400 miles a day on a front of 250 miles.

NEW YORK, April 24.—(UP)—Agents planned a fight to prevent the return of Frankie Foster, a Chicago gangster, to New York where he has been a participant in a holdup. Foster was given yesterday when District Judge Thomas F. Moran permanent writ of habeas corpus that prevents his extradition.

Foster was once indicted for the murder of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, one of a Chicago gangland assassination.

Moran saved Foster from extradition and trial in New York at the end of a four day hearing. Agents, who arrested Foster in March, brought Walter Brown, clerk in the New York store robbed of $138,000 by three bandits in January, and identified Foster as one of the three.

He ordered state authorities to return the $100,000 Foster had paid to guarantee his appearance in court.

INDIAN TO FACE KIDNAP CHARGE

Richard Taylor, 42, Arrested in Allentown, Pa.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., April 24.—(UP)—Richard Taylor, 42, Akron, O., will be given a hearing today on a charge of kidnaping 10-year-old Henry Thomas Koch, son of a wealthy department store executive.

Taylor will be prosecuted under the Pennsylvania law governing kidnaping.

Police reported that Taylor, who was a washing machine salesman in Akron, made a "full confession." He admitted, according to officials, that he lured young Koch into his automobile on the pretense that he would show him a "fine coat."

Henry accepted the ride, but became suspicious when Taylor drove beyond Allentown's city limits. The boy told police that he was bound and gagged with tape. He said he freed himself when Taylor left him under a blanket in a woods apparently to return to Allentown to "collect" a $20,000 ransom which was demanded of the boy's father.

Running to the farm home of Frank Clauser, young Koch notified his parents. Taylor was arrested within an hour.

Police questioned a woman, but Taylor maintained he was a "lone wolf," and that he had received no help, they said.

PLANE TO SPEED NOTED SURGEON FOR TREATMENT

was making splendid progress. Scadding also was said to be showing steady improvement.

Congratulations from every part of the world, including the personal ones of King Edward VIII, poured in today on the 100 Nova Scotia gold and coal miners who labored heroically in the dangerous Reynolds shaft to free the men.

Edward called Governor General Lord Tweedsmuir as follows:

"I am thrilled with admiration for the heroism displayed by the gallant men who, regardless of risk to their own lives, effected the rescue of Dr. Robertson and Scadding from the Moose River mine. Please express to them my heartfelt congratulations on the success of their courageous efforts and my hope they are not suffering any ill effects from the hardships they underwent. I should be glad to have further news of Dr. Robertson and Scadding."

Canadian mounted police deployed hundreds of sightseers from Moose River today—for their safety if for no other reason. Soon after Robertson and Scadding were taken out through Reynolds shaft, police caught souvenir hunters making for the shaft, which is so dangerous that the experienced miners risked their lives all the time they were in it.

The shaft will be dynamited against the possibility of anyone ever crawling into it.

ROSS-CO. FAVORS JUDGE

Harley Whitcraft to Receive Chillicothe Support

CHILLICOTHE, April 24.—Judge Harley M. Whitcraft of Logan, candidate for the Court of Appeals, had the double endorsement, Thursday, of the Republican Executive Committee of Ross-co and of 22 Republican members of the Bar of the county.

Judge Whitcraft has served nine years as Common Pleas Judge and disposed of more than 2,800 cases in Hocking-co with only three reversals. He has held court on special assignments in 23 counties, including Ross-co; and he has been heard here frequently in addresses before civic organizations. Recently, at the conclusion of a special assignment of several weeks in Jefferson-co, the attorneys there passed resolutions highly complimenting Judge Whitcraft's services and his ability.

past the bodies of many Ethiopians lying on rain-soaked ground or riding the crests of swollen streams.

Gen. Rodolfo Graziani is believed trying to force the Ethiopians in toward Sasa Baneh so that he may make a mass attack on the city from two sides, and break completely the last resistance on the path to the vital Jigga-Harar area and the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railway.

Italian advance guards were believed within 50 miles of Sasa Baneh and news of a sanguinary battle was expected at any time.

Flights of the Italian reconnaissance airplane squadrons has revealed a strong concentration of Ethiopians at Sasa Baneh, presumably under the brilliant, Turkish General Wehib Passa.

That a desperate resistance is planned seems plain. Warriors can be seen hurriedly reconstructing fortifications destroyed in recent preparatory bombing raids.

A NUMBER of girls were practicing at the high school for the May Day festival. They were skipping. The pupils not in the exercise at the time were sitting on the bleachers watching, when suddenly they smelled rubber burning. They all looked around but did not see anything. One of the girls said: "Look at the smoke on the field," and it was discovered the soles of the rubber shoes of Miss Priest, who was leading the girls in their skipping, were on fire.

Proposed Projects

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(UP)—Application for approval of 14 flood control reservoirs in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia was filed with the projects committee of the National River and Harbors Congress today by the tri-state authority representing municipal officials in 230 cities and towns.

OPEN LETTERS

TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

MEMBERS: Your president, W. E. Wallace, has started his year as president in the right foot. No sooner did he appoint the important committees than he instructed them to be ready to make a report at the next meeting of the organization May 5. The committees, chosen to study advisability and possibility of re-building the original Circleville in replanting program, and try to reach some solution for the uptown traffic situation, have started to work. They will be ready to report at least partial reports when the next meeting date arrives. The Chamber of Commerce is to be congratulated for its desire to go ahead, and its effort to make Circleville a better city in which to live.

CIRCUITEER

TO SCHOOL BOARDS

EDUCATORS: The time of the year has arrived when it is your duty to employ administrators and teachers for the next school year. I urge you to go about this duty with the single thought in mind that you are working for the interest of the boys and girls in your community. On your shoulders rests a burden. If you exercise good judgment by electing teachers with good records, then you have done your community a good that will be remembered with manifold dividends. If you fail to investigate the ability of persons you hire, you are placing the welfare and future of your children in jeopardy. In choosing administrators it is well to carefully select the persons you believe will properly direct the teaching staff, because no matter how good a corps of instructors they must have proper direction.

TO COUNTY VOTERS

FRIENDS: Two weeks from next Tuesday, May 12, is a crucial day in the lives of many of you. It is the date of the primary election when you will decide who you want to represent your party in the November general election. Never, in recent years, has the election ticket been so filled as it is this spring. Not often are there names of so many fine candidates presented. This letter is not a plea for any one candidate, but an urgent appeal to each voter to exercise his right of franchise by casting a ballot at the polls on May 12. Between now and that date you will be visited by many aspirants; you will hear Traditionally, the Republicans have been for a "protection" tariff. Through the Republican manufacturers have obtained a lot of protection for which they are not entitled.

many stories of "Why I should be elected" and "Why my opponent is not a fit man for the office". It is your duty to study the candidates for the various positions, decide in your own mind which would best represent you, your friends and your interests, then cast your vote for those persons.

TO METHODIST MINISTERS

GENTLEMEN: Next Tuesday will be a "red letter" day in the history of the Chillicothe district of the Methodist church. Your superintendent, Dr. Robert McClure, ends his long service as your representative. A program fittingly has been arranged to be held in the Circleville church. Each minister of the district, which includes several Pickaway-co Methodist churches, has been invited to attend and bring with him a number of his laymen, since work among laymen is being stressed in the Ohio conference. If all attend who are expected a great day will be observed in the Circleville church. All Methodists are welcome to attend the session.

CIRCUITEER

TO SHERIFF AND MAYOR

DEAR SIRS: Your attitude in regard to operators of "number" games locating in Pickaway-co is proper. These operators, who were run out of other counties, should not be allowed to bring their gambling games to our county. I know that the public was glad of your statements this week that you would not tolerate such practices here. I am sure that the county will not be bothered with such games if you back up your warning, which I believe you will.

CIRCUITEER

TO SCHOOL OFFICIALS, TEACHERS

FRIENDS: The Parents' night program and exhibit have been praised by residents as the finest school activity ever presented in Circleville. These programs should be annual events. Members of the board of education should seriously consider the need of an art teacher to develop the talents demonstrated by pupils who prepared the splendid exhibits.

TO WPA OFFICIALS, WORKMEN

GENTLEMEN: Your Court-st paving program in the downtown district has been completed. Congratulations are due you for the fine work and speed with which you covered that section. Residents and merchants are proud of the new street, an outstanding civic improvement.

CIRCUITEER

TO TRAFFIC SURVEY COMMITTEE

DEAR SIRS: In making your survey of traffic conditions in the downtown district give consideration to the alleys. Many are narrow and should be used for one-way traffic only. When one car stops in these alleys it causes a bad "tangle."

CIRCUITEER

TO DEERCREEK-TWP RESIDENTS

DEAR CITIZENS: The spirit you showed recently when obtaining a commissioners' grant for a memorial organization in your township was splendid. I know that the Memorial association you are planning to organize soon will be a success. Our soldier and sailor dead should be honored. Since you have no veterans' organization your Memorial association is needed.

THE CAMDEN RUBY MURDER

ADAM BLISS

READ THIS FIRST:

Detective Keyes and Gary Maughan are seeking the mysterious slayer of Margalo Younger, an actress and old friend of Maughan. She was murdered with a needle-like instrument as she and Maughan sat in the home of Dow Van Every, a collector of rare jewels, listening to his gruesome story of the famous Camden ruby's history. The actress had been wearing Van Every's ruby which he described as a "murder stone." Among those questioned by the detective were Maughan; Van Every; his young niece, Joyce, who lives with him; her fiancé, Allan Foster; Joyce's companion, Laura Randall, and a Mrs. Bryce, close friend of Van Every's. Another suspect is Roy Barrimore, close friend of the actress, who shot himself shortly after her death. Margalo's maid finds a duplicate Camden ruby among the effects of her dead mistress which, however, proves to be a fake. Keyes interviews Manuel Gonzales, a friend of Margalo's. Maughan runs into Laura Randall on the street who promises to have some important information for him the next morning. Van Every's ruby is found missing from his hiding place shortly before Miss Randall is found murdered in the cab in which Maughan had left her a few moments previously. The ruby is found among her clothes. The police question Maughan. Detective Keyes arrives at the morgue where Maughan has been detained.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 29

"I DIDN'T want no woman murdered in my taxi, and me having no alibi," the cab driver told Keyes in explanation of his leading the police to me.

"You say she was alive when you stopped for traffic at Twenty-ninth street?"

"She was calling out 'Miss Joyce'—Mr. Maughan here says it was 'Miss Joyce'—and rapping on the glass, then she opened the window."

"Very much alive, then?"

"I would say so."

"Did you see the person she called?"

"No, I didn't. Fact is, now that I think of it, I'm positive she could hardly see the sidewalk, the opposite sidewalk from where she was. It was dark, you know, and there were cars all over the street to her left. She must have recognized her party in a passing taxi. Of course the party may have been a pedestrian in front of us, but my car wasn't the first in line. It was about the third."

"Could you see the pedestrians from where you were?"

"I could if I had looked, but I wasn't looking."

"Opening the left side window would indicate that Miss Randall saw someone in a taxi beside her?"

"Or on the other side of the street."

"Which was almost impossible?"

"Well, as I was saying, it was getting dark, and the cars were thick."

"I see. Now when you reached the hotel, where did you see Mr. Maughan?"

"This gentleman was coming out the revolving doors. In a hurry. I knew him at once, though he was dressed different than he was when I left him at the curb. Then he had on a sort of camel's hair overcoat, and a tan felt hat."

"Keyes questioned Knox for some time, going over and over the points Knox had explained fully so many times before. But each time, the driver gave the same answers. I was convinced long before Keyes was that Knox was telling the truth.

"Then after you found her what happened?" he continued.

"I stopped the car. It was next to the curb anyway. I thought the lady had fainted, and I saw a drug store on the corner. I was going to get a drink of water for her, or take her in there. I don't remember. You know how crowds gather. In a moment there were a hundred people around the taxi, and I couldn't get through. One man came up and said he was a doctor. He had a bag and stepped into the car. The lady's hat was off. He put his hand to her forehead, and found the—what-ever it was. Spike, I guess. I don't know. 'It's murder,' he said. 'The lady's dead. Better get a policeman.' One was pushing through the crowd by that time. Several others came up, too. I told the first cop about Mr. Maughan, so we ran to the Washington. And the other cops took the lady to the morgue in a taxi. That's all I know."

Keyes turned to one of the officers. "This doctor? You held him?"

"Yes, he's below, getting impatient. Murphy, I think, got the names of all the witnesses."

A worried individual grasping a small black bag was ushered in. He was Dr. Emile Michel, young interne at St. Anne's hospital, on his way to a private case. He told Keyes quickly what had happened. Standing on the curb awaiting an empty taxi, he had seen Jerry Knox stop his car and get out. He noticed a woman lying on the floor. Apparently hundreds of other people did too, for in a moment he was being pressed up to the car, people pushing him from behind. He noticed Knox, though he didn't know his name until afterwards, trying to fight his way through. It was then that he said he was a doctor, and climbed into the taxi to see what he could do for the woman. In feeling the woman's head he had found a needle-like instrument. He knew the woman was dead. The needle or whatever it was, he didn't know what then, had pierced her left temple, killing her.

He had not taken much time for the examination, although in the car coming to the morgue, where he sat beside the dead woman, he had tried to be more thorough. He was late now, hours late for his call, and could he go?

Keyes dismissed him kindly, after taking his address. Knox whined when the captain ordered him held for the night, but it availed him nothing. The two stalwart policemen led him quickly away.

We were alone at last.

"See here, Maughan, come clean to me. What do you know about this?" Keyes asked suddenly, after the door had closed on Knox.

"Only what I told you. Someone must have heard Miss Randall ask for an appointment tomorrow. And that someone killed her before she could say anything."

"A murder on Fifth avenue, in the busiest part of the day?" he mused.

"With a Jew. I was on my feet."

"Keyes got this driver back here, and ask him if he saw a bus?"

"A bus?"

"Yes, I've been thinking taxis until I'm crazy. Miss Randall's murderer might have been on a bus!"

"Yes, I've been thinking taxis until I'm crazy. Miss Randall's murderer might have been on a bus!"

Keyes questioned Knox for some time, going over and over the points Knox had explained fully so many times before. But each time, the driver gave the same answers. I was convinced long before Keyes was that Knox was telling the truth.

"Then after you found her what happened?" he continued.

"I stopped the car. It was next to the curb anyway. I thought the lady had fainted, and I saw a drug store on the corner. I was going to get a drink of water for her, or take her in there. I don't remember. You know how crowds gather. In a moment there were a hundred people around the taxi, and I couldn't get through. One man came up and said he was a doctor. He had a bag and stepped into the car. The lady's hat was off. He put his hand to her forehead, and found the—what-ever it was. Spike, I guess. I don't know. 'It's murder,' he said. 'The lady's dead. Better get a policeman.' One was pushing through the crowd by that time. Several others came up, too. I told the first cop about Mr. Maughan, so we ran to the Washington. And the other cops took the lady to the morgue in a taxi. That's all I know."

Keyes turned to one of the officers. "This doctor? You held him?"

"Yes, he's below, getting impatient. Murphy, I think, got the names of all the witnesses."

A worried individual grasping a small black bag was ushered in. He was Dr. Emile Michel, young interne at St. Anne's hospital, on his way to a private case. He told Keyes quickly what had happened. Standing on the curb awaiting an empty taxi, he had seen Jerry Knox stop his car and get out. He noticed a woman lying on the floor. Apparently hundreds of other people did too, for in a moment he was being pressed up to the car, people pushing him from behind. He noticed Knox, though he didn't know his name until afterwards, trying to fight his way through. It was then that he said he was a doctor, and climbed into the taxi to see what he could do for the woman. In feeling the woman's head he had found a needle-like instrument. He knew the woman was dead. The needle or whatever it was, he didn't know what then, had pierced her left temple, killing her.

He had not taken much time for the examination, although in the car coming to the morgue, where he sat beside the dead woman, he had tried to be more thorough. He was late now, hours late for his call, and could he go?

Keyes dismissed him kindly, after taking his address. Knox whined when the captain ordered him held for the night, but it availed him nothing. The two stalwart policemen led him quickly away.

We were alone at last.

"See here, Maughan, come clean to me. What do you know about this?" Keyes asked suddenly, after the door had closed on Knox.

"Only what I told you. Someone must have heard Miss Randall ask for an appointment tomorrow. And that someone killed her before she could say anything."

"A murder on Fifth avenue, in the busiest part of the day?" he mused.

"With a Jew. I was on my feet."

"Keyes got this driver back here, and ask him if he saw a bus?"

"A bus?"

"Yes, I've been thinking taxis until I'm crazy. Miss Randall's murderer might have been on a bus!"

CONTRACT BRIDGE

EVEN CHANCE FOR GAME

WHEN NOT vulnerable, taking what you consider an even chance of go game or go down a couple of tricks is a good business risk. Players who refuse to venture to that extent are not winning partners, taking hands as they come. Considering all the circumstances, East's tactics and final call on the following deal, both are sound and interesting.

♠ 7 4
♥ K 5 3
♦ J 10 8
♣ K Q 6 3 2

♠ K J 9 6 2
♥ A Q J 4
♦ A Q 6
♣ A 10

♠ A 8 5
♥ 10 9 7
♦ A 4 3 2
♣ J 9 5

Bidding went: East, 1-Spade, fourth hand; West, 1-No Trump, which partner knew showed a probable minimum of the equivalent of 2 playing tricks, as a member of the declaring side; East, 2-Hearts, to ask partner's further advice; West, 2-Spades, a simple shift, showing only a preference, without more strength than shown by the negative no trump; East, 4-Spades, on what he calculated might be an even chance of going game or going down not more than two tricks. Bidding showed rather clearly that West would not raise 3-Spades to a game call, so East had to assume the risk and take the plunge. South had no very good holding from which to lead. Finally he decided to lead the 9 of clubs. North played the Q and declarer was in with his Ace. His return led was the 2 of spades. South played low and the 10 held. The top heart was led back. East had more of a job on his hands than he perhaps had figured upon. The K of hearts had to be in the North hand to yield game, and even then hearts had to break. There were odds of about 4 to 1 that hearts would not be divided 3-2 and at the same time have the K in North's hand. When the J of hearts held the third offensive trick East smiled for the first time since viewing dummy. The 6 of spades was led back. This time South played the Ace. He led the J of clubs, to show partner where it was. He picked up declarer's second losing trick. The 5 of clubs was led and ruffed. The 9 of spades was over-taken with dummy's Q. The 6 of hearts was led through North, who played the 5. The Q won. South dropped the 3, leaving the K and 10 still out. If North held both of them, game was impossible. There was no chance to lead through. Declarer might as well lead off his Ace. If he failed to bring out both missing hearts game could not be made. The Ace was led, pulling all missing hearts and leaving the 4 good for the tenth trick, which East took at once. Play was over and game must be made. Declarer spread his three remaining cards, stating that one diamond trick and the trump trick belonged to him. Defenders were welcome to the other diamond trick.

Stomach Pain Not Recognized by Laymen

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE SURGEON calls it "the acute abdomen"; the layman calls it "the bellyache". The surgeon regards it with profound respect and apprehension; the layman says it is probably due to something he ate and all he needs is a dose of salts. The layman feels perfectly competent to handle the case himself or ask his wife what to do, or if things don't clear up immediately, ask the druggist.

The surgeon thinks that all the facilities of a hospital and a nurse and two or three consultants are not too much to insure safety.

This is a remarkable paradox—the difference between two points of view.

Of course, all acute bellyaches are not serious and do not require any elaborate medical or surgical treatment. In most cases there is no serious disease present and the condition gets well by itself. But just the same, there are enough of them that do mean something serious, in which the application of the right treatment in the early stage means the difference between life and death, that their importance overbalances all the cases in which the layman's home-made treatment results in recovery.

When the real case comes along the layman's treatment is almost invariably wrong and a contributing cause to the fatal outcome. It is the fact that the acute abdomen nearly always falls into the hands of a layman first for treatment that makes the subject of such considerable importance.

Arises Suddenly

The acute abdomen may arise suddenly in the midst of perfect health. That is one of the reasons it is regarded as of no importance. It may come along in the midst of other troubles which overshadow it. Building engineers have a saying, "With the material at hand, let us proceed." When the human machine is afflicted with influenza, tonsillitis, heart or kidney upset, they may prepare the way for an acute abdominal infection, but they overshadow its symptoms.

It may be brewing, and a sudden accident precipitates a crisis and upsets sound judgment as to the real sequence of events. For instance, a woman and her daughter were playing with a dog. The daughter picked the dog up and threw it at her mother. The mother was startled and fell. She was struck by the dog and struck her head on the abdomen. About an hour later she began to complain of severe pain in the abdomen. That night she vomited three or four times and began to run a fever. She thought it was simply due to the accident of the dog's striking her on the abdomen. So she did the first physician who attended her, and he as usual had no application. When, the next day, she was found to have a temperature of 104 and a pulse of 140, was still sore and vomiting, the diagnosis of appendicitis finally was agreed upon. The dog's striking the abdomen had nothing to do with the situation. It just so happened that this occurred at the very beginning of the attack of appendicitis before symptoms had begun to make themselves known.

Chess Pie

Chess pie is pretty rich, so I have not suggested any other vegetable but the potatoes and salad in today's menu. I hope there are no reducers in your family, or you will not want to serve a sweet like chess pie. I hope you won't shriek at my extravagance in suggesting tenderloins. They are expensive, I grant you, but don't forget there is no waste and so a little goes a long way.

Today's Recipes

Gingerbread Waffles—Two cups flour, one-half teaspoon ginger, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup molasses, one-half cup butter, one and one-half teaspoons soda, one cup sour milk, one egg. Sift well flour, spices and salt. Heat to boiling point but do not boil molasses and butter. Remove from stove and beat in soda. Add sour milk, beaten egg, then sifted dry ingredients. Bake in a greased waffle iron, or on electric iron which does not need greasing. Watch carefully lest iron get too hot. Serve waffles hot with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored to taste.

Chess Pie—Four eggs, one and one-half cups sugar, one cup butter, one-half teaspoon vanilla, unbaked shell. Beat eggs until thick and lemon colored. Add sugar gradually, beating it in. Melt butter, pour slowly into the egg and sugar mixture, beating it in also. Add vanilla. Turn into an unbaked shell. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, until a silver knife when inserted comes out clean.

Save Orange Peel

Save orange peels and make use of them. Put them through a chopper and then cover with sugar and they can be used as flavoring and added touches in salads, puddings and cakes—or even on tea biscuits when the latter are about to be placed in the oven.

SUPREME COURT MAY RULE SOON IN RATE CASES

state in 1924, when the utility commission consolidated a large number of protests by municipalities against telephone rate increases.

The Supreme Court may rule that the utilities commission's findings holds or it may refer the case back to the commission for further study. If the court decides that the commission's method of fixing valuation of the property is correct, the refund will be ordered.

While it will directly effect only local gas consumers, the Columbus gas case is regarded as of great importance because of the precedent it may set for future action by the utilities commission.

The court's decision will be based on an ordinance passed by city council in 1929 setting a 48-cent gas rate. The gas company protested, and the case has been in the hands of the court and utility commission several times.
The case has once been in the hands of the U. S. Supreme Court.

May Affect Systems

Although not as important as the two rate cases, the court's decision in the Hamilton-co case will vitally affect the civil service system in county offices.

The case was taken into the supreme court by the state civil service commission when county auditor George Guckenberger refused to accept a ruling of the commission that he could not deprive employees in his office of their civil service status by appointing them deputies.

Cuckenberger held that the employees lost their civil service rating when he appointed them deputy auditors, and therefore they could be discharged by him without hearing before the commission.

DETECTIVE'S SON INDICTED, HIDES TO ESCAPE JAIL

that grand jury up in Brooklyn is investigating me, too."

Wendel, a once disbarred Trenton lawyer, confessed at the height of Hoffman's fight for Hauptmann that it was he who kidnaped and murdered the Lindbergh baby, for whose death Hauptmann had been condemned. He repudiated the confession after Parker, Sr., had delivered him to Mercer-co police, who charged him with the murder.
The confession was extorted, he said, by kidnapers who seized him in New York, held him prisoner there 10 days, and beat him daily.

The Kings-co grand jury indicted young Parker on charges of kidnaping and second degree assault. Indicted with him were Martin Schlossman, Harry Bleef-feld, and Harry Weiss, of New York, and Murry Bleefeld, Harry Bleefeld's son, of Trenton.

Schlossman Confesses

Schlossman was arrested Sunday and confessed, police said, that the basement of his home was Wendel's prison. Harry Bleefeld, 61, was arrested Wednesday. An order for arrest of Murry Bleefeld, and Weiss was broadcast today.

Geoghan hinted to County Judge George W. Martin that the grand jury might return other indictments. Wendel testified before the jury for the third time, and just before it adjourned, Geoghan summoned Schlossman to testify. Immediately afterward Geoghan seconded an appeal by Schlossman's attorney for a $7,500 bail, a surprisingly low figure in view of the district attorney's previous insistence that he be granted no bail whatever.

SCIOTO-TWP SCHOOL NEWS

Grade 8

During April 20-24 we are observing Kindness to Animal Week.
Boys and girls have brought in the pictures of their pets for class use.
We are writing original stories about pets in English class and learning to spell the names.

We made spelling booklets last week. All pupils are trying to have a perfect record during the month.

Grade 12

Our class party was given Friday evening April 17, 1938 at the home of Velma Burgett.

Our class play "That's one on Bill" will be given at the school auditorium May 8 admission will be 15c and 25c.

Grade 6

The boys and girls in the sixth grade are observing "Kindness to Animals" Week this week from April 12-25. We are also thinking about Wild Flower Day which has been set aside as Friday April 24.

We have just started to read the adventure of Ulysses in Reading.

We are trying to improve our spelling grades. Each day we have regular lessons, and on Friday we have a final "check-up" over the week's work. Only one person made straight hundreds last week, but several made four one hundreds for the entire week.

"Every Pupil Tests" seem to be fun for the Sixth Grade. In fact, they never say anything for or against them. Their scores so far have been quite satisfactory and pleasing. These are being given just as a check-up for our own satisfaction.

Sophomore Class
The Sophomore Class is very much pleased that Lillie Margaret Wilson won the highest honor of Pickaway County in Scholarship Test for Latin 2. We are hoping she will do equally as well in the State Scholarship Tests.

UTILITY SURVEY IN CHILLICOTHE GAINING FAVOR

Fairbanks-Morse Co. to Study
Light and Water Service Franchises

CHILLICOTHE, April 24—City
Auditor Lou Hibbler was poring over ancient official tomes, Thursday, attempting to find the original franchises for light and water service in Chillicothe.

Mayor James E. Ford disclosed that Fairbanks-Morse Co., engineers had requested the document for study in connection with a survey they expect to make.

Engineers Visit Here

Two engineers of the company, which sets up utility plants, were City Hall callers Wednesday. They hope to begin their survey Tuesday, the mayor explained.

Whether their work will result in a movement toward municipal ownership of light and water plants, Mayor Ford said he did not know. The survey, they assured him, he explained, will cost the city nothing, and will give citizens much interesting information about the possibilities of Chillicothe owning its own light and water plants.

Sees No Expense

"The engineers said it wouldn't cost anything, and I told them to go ahead because I think the people are entitled to know all there is to be known about these matters", Mayor Ford explained.

The Fairbanks-Morse Co., it is understood, built a municipal light plant at Bainbridge, accepting mortgage bonds on the plant, which are being retired on power receipts.

The possibilities of the city combining light and water plants under its own administration were advanced by Mayor Walter S.
Barrett during his regime.

Books Not Indexed

Auditor Hibbler was confronted with a difficult task in locating the original light and water franchises. Old ordinance books are not indexed. He said he had located a perpetual franchise given the Chillicothe Gas, Light & Water Co. in 1881, but asserted he had not yet been able to verify information that a perpetual franchise had been given in the same year to the Juneman Electric Light Co.

If both franchises are perpetual in nature, the city, in case it took up a municipal ownership plan, would either have to buy the companies out, or compete with them.

The city's rate ordinance with the water company expires about the first of the year, Mayor Ford said, while the light rate ordinance does not expire until May, 1938.

Radio Priest's "Top Man" in Washington Viewed as Expert Organizer, Lobbyist

Louis B. Ward Adept at Fighting and Politics

DETROIT—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin does not himself need to go to Washington to fight his opponents in congress. He already has an effective fighter there—Louis B. Ward.

Ward is chief Washington lobbyist for the Detroit radio priest. He like-wise is the practical organizing force behind the priest's Union for Social Justice.

Ward is an expert organizer. When a sergeant in the American Expeditionary Force, he was assigned to a railway signal tower in France. And there in a brief time he learned to direct all the movements of trains at an important junction near the fighting lines.

Makes Good

He had written on his application blank that he had worked a few months with a railroad crew when he was young. This was the only railroad experience he had obtained, but he was the only man in the outfit who had as much as that. And he made good on the job.

Today, Father Coughlin is assured that Ward is making good in his present job. His official title is public relations and business manager of the National Union for Social Justice.

The ingenuity Ward showed in that French signal tower is called into play daily in his present task—as lobbyist. He is mingling politics with advertising: the two occupations he always has liked best.

Has Large Staff

When working for Father Coughlin in his large offices in the tower of the Shrine of the Little Flower, at Royal Oak, Ward, nominally secretary to the priest, has a staff of secretaries under him. It is his task to see that all goes well with the National Union for Social Justice.

In Washington, Ward is "general" of a smaller force. There his task is to push measures advocated by Father Coughlin. Three years ago Ward became friendly with Father Coughlin. Ward was one of the most outstanding Catholic laymen in Detroit. He has stood behind the radio priest in all his fights since. And he wrote the only authorized biography of Father Coughlin two years ago.

One of the chief factors in directing Ward to Coughlin was his previous connection. He was a vice president of Theodore F. MacManus, Inc., an advertising firm, and was in charge of direct mail advertising.

Thus, when Ward left the MacManus company three years ago, it seemed only natural for this man, talented in advertising and publicity psychology, to turn to Father Coughlin.

MacManus himself probably is the city's most influential Catholic layman. He has received a decoration from the pope, and citations in numerous instances for his service to the church. Under MacManus, Ward had taken new interest in working for the church.

Louis Burns Ward was born in Albany, N. Y., 50 odd years ago, the son of a New York judge. He was educated as a teacher in a normal college at Albany, and for several years after graduation there he taught in high schools in the vicinity.

Through his father's interest in politics, Louis early took an interest in capital doings at Albany. Though he never held an important public office, he was intrigued by its various machinations.

Ward has been active also in the Irish movement in the United States. When Eamon de Valera came to America seeking help for the campaign to make Ireland a Free State, Louis Ward was among the first to offer his services. He acted as de Valera's advance agent, and was successful in selling bonds throughout the country. It was on his trip through the
